List of Editors, Proofreaders, and Tutors
Fall 2021

This list of editors, proofreaders, and tutors in English is provided by the Department of English at the University of Wisconsin-Madison as a community service. The English Department does not endorse the qualifications or guarantee the services of any of the persons who have submitted their names for inclusion on the list. Fees are negotiated on an individual basis. The persons below are listed in no particular order. You should read each entry carefully to make sure the editor can fulfill your needs (i.e., last minute work, tutoring, etc.).

Amy Gaeta

Editing/proofreading ($25/hr); Tutoring ($30/hr)

QUALIFICATIONS: Ph.D. candidate in English—Literary Studies. I hold a BA from the University of Massachusetts and an MA from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. I have five years of experience as an instructor of writing, multimodal composition, and literature. For the past four years, I have worked as a freelance research assistant and editor/ proofreader. I am trained in writing styles used in the arts and sciences, in addition to professional documents, non-academic prose, and grant writing. I am happy to work with writers from all disciplines at any level in their careers. I will consider last-minute requests on a case-by-case basis.

Marek Makowski

Proofreading ($35/hour), Editing ($40/hour), and Tutoring ($50/hour)

I'm a PhD student and instructor in UW's English Department, a writer for UW's Office of Sustainability, a writing tutor for UW's Athletic Department, and a writing assignment specialist for the University of Texas-Austin. For the past four years I've taught how to write essays and analyze writing in every genre. I started in journalism, publishing various articles, columns, and feature stories in newspapers; more recently, I've published essays in magazines and journals such as The Yale Review, World Literature Today, and the Chicago Review of Books. I have also worked as an assistant editor on an anthology of essays, as a reader for The Missouri Review, and as an editor for UW's School of Public Affairs. Previous freelance projects include essays and books by university faculty members in various departments (education, psychology, literary studies), as well as resumes and cover letters for a high-ranking business professional, a deputy mayor, and the founder of a nonprofit. I can take on last-minute projects for a higher rate.

Keli Tucker

Editing/Proofreading: ($20/hour), Tutoring ($25/hour)

QUALIFICATIONS: Current PhD student in Composition and Rhetoric at UW-Madison; M.A. DePaul University (English); B.S. Drury University (English). I have taught beginning and intermediate composition at UW-Madison, and have six years of experience tutoring undergraduate and graduate writers of all experience levels in the UW-Madison Writing Center and at other institutions, including extensive experience tutoring multilingual writers. My editorial experience ranges from editing and proofreading faculty publications in various disciplines to providing editorial assistance on a book manuscript (New Perspectives on European Women's Legal History, eds. Sara Kimble and Marion Röwekamp). I am able to assist with drafting, revising, and polishing multiple kinds of academic, professional, and personal writing, including application materials, grant applications, theses and dissertations, resumes and CVs, and more. Whether as a tutor, editor, or proofreader, my goal is to help writers work toward greater clarity, cohesion, and overall effectiveness while still retaining their individual voice and style. I am happy to consider last minute or rush requests on a case-by-case basis.
